

Entrepreneur in Residence

We are on a mission to accelerate the introduction of advanced personalised therapies by providing an intelligent platform for data-driven medical research that makes clinical trials significantly more efficient. Among our customers are Europe's leading hospitals such as the Charité in Berlin. Next to a number of public grants, we received six-digit funding from private investors and we are now looking for entrepreneurial minds to join our journey!

# your job

You work together closely with the founders on both strategic projects and daily operations while taking over responsibility for your own projects. Your tasks and responsibilities will include:

- Lead and support different strategic projects and their implementation.
- Develop and implement effective and highly scalable processes.
- Support us in building and maintaining an excellent team.
- Conduct thorough competitor and market analysis to analyse different segments and trends for data-driven decisions.
- Support driving strategic projects to develop Climedo into Europe's leading software solution for clinical validation.

# your profile

- You are a business student or from a related field of study in your final years and have already gained some practical experience, ideally in a high-growth startup or management consultancy.
- You are a creative, curious and analytical problem solver with a talent for business development and number crunching.
- You are a structured, well-organised and independent worker with an entrepreneurial mindset and a getting-things-done attitude.
- You have strong written and verbal German and English skills.
- You are passionate about digital health who wants to work on meaningful topics in a meaningful industry.

# your opportunity

- Be part of an international, ambitious and impact-driven team with several years of entrepreneurial experience (CDTM, Foodora, KONUX, Stylight, etc.).
- Gain first-hand insight into the digital health market and the tech startup world
- Work together with the founders and support them in a variety of tasks, including business development, marketing and finance - steep learning curve guaranteed.
- Take over responsibility from day one and work on your own projects.
- Help us improve the performance of medical research and accelerate the momentum of data-driven healthcare.

Sounds like you? Apply now!
